U. S. S. TACOMA IN DANGER OFF VERA CRUZ

Four Tickets Appear In C. of C. Election

SPIRITED FIGHT BEING WAGED

Complete Slates Are Being Pushed By Friends

At 1:20 o'clock 87 votes had been polled. This figure is six more than has been cast at any previous chamber election.

The lid was kicked off in the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping annual directors election today.

Indications were seen that the largest vote in years would be polled before the polls close at 6 o'clock tonight.

From the budget campaign side lines where he is directing his crew of workers in raising the $40,000 quota to carry out the chamber's progress program during 1924 General Chairman Lohmann looked on the scene of voting activity and found it good.

"It has heartened the workers to find the interest being taken in chamber affairs," he said. "The Chamber of Commerce is sold to the citizen, ship this year better than ever before in its history."

Apparently no tight lines were drawn in the voting contests today. Four sets of tickets mysteriously appeared in the field this morning, but there was no evidence of any but friendly rivalry.

Tickets appearing, the numerals below merely being used to designate each from the other, were:

No. 1—M. T. Ball, H. F. Banker, Geo. Bliss, F. P. Dodge, F. E. Gifford, C. C. Harrell, H. Henderson, J. W. Lyons, D. H. Sikes.

Port Arthur Will Pause Tomorrow In Memory of Explosion Victims

In discharge of his duties, the appalling disaster has brought to us, who are more safeguarded by the nature of our position, a better realization of the fact that while we labor in safety there are others who, to carry on the progress of our community, must necessarily expose their lives and it is to them that we are now offering our respect as can be shown at 11 a. m.

These nine men have passed beyond the realm of pain and suffering but there remain beloved and stricken wives, children and aged parents, and it is to them that we give an assurance; such outward manifestation of the depth of our feeling and an expression of realization of the sacrifice they made in carrying on to make our city one of the greatest centers of the kind in the world.

It is in this connection that I officially suggest and request that every merchant in the city, and every office, public or otherwise, remain closed for a period of five minutes, commencing with 4 o'clock. Thursday afternoon, during which interval all business will be suspended and thoughts directed to those who, a few days ago were a part of us and valued members of our community as well as thoughts of those homes which have been desolated and whose hearts which have been numbered by the greatest disaster which has ever overtaken our city.

(Signed) J. J. LOGAN, Mayor.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer.—1 John 3:15.
Who's our hatred is too keen it places us beneath those we hate.—La Rochefoucauld.

TAX REDUCTION COMES FIRST—MELLON

President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon demanded the right of way for tax reduction before bonus legislation would be considered. And the administration won. Coolidge has backbone and holds the whip hand; Mellon has the backbone, and political opposition gives him a thrill. He has scant respect for professional politicians. He insists that the holders or owners of twenty-billion dollars invested in tax exempt securities shall not escape the dragnet of the federal tax collector.

There is where he has many of the professional politicians on the hip. They say it is an invasion of state rights for the federal government to tax state bonds or securities or county and municipal securities. An old civilization was shot to death on Flanders field; a still older civilization was shot to death at Gettysburg. Then southern senators, calling themselves democrats, gave the finishing touch to the dogma of state rights when they put over the Eighteenth and Nineteenth amendments.

These amendments slew John Barleycorn and placed the ballot in the hands of woman. And no doubt a vast majority of the American people joyously ratified the work of the national lawmakers. Secretary Mellon says he is after the idle rich who have large unearned incomes invested in tax exempt wealth. They neither toil nor spin nor contribute to the support of the government, according to this very wise financier who may be the second Alexander Hamilton of the republic.

Of course the democrats are finding fault with all that Mellon and the republicans are planning. This is the way the game of politics is played. Partisan republicans damn the program offered by partisan democrats; partisan democrats retaliate by damning the programs offered by their political adversaries.

Mellon is not a partisan republican. He is the big financier of the administration, the government. He would handle the government business as he handles private business. He would make the receipts greater than the expenditures and he would out to the bone to bring this policy to the fore and make it the fixed financial policy of the government.

There is no telling. We are on the eve of a presidential election and the national lawmakers may carry the bonus issue over until December, the dying month of 1924.

If there was a physically perfect man his interior would be built along the thermos bottle idea.

PETROLEUM COMING BACK

Consumption of petroleum products is greater than ever before in the history of the country. Production of crude last year was greater than ever before in the history of the country. Now the wise ones say that the demand for gasoline and other refined products will be greater this year than last year and that additional fields must be brought in to supply the demand for crude.

Price of gasoline is climbing to the top; price of crude petroleum is climbing; wild catters are becoming active in all Texas fields; scouts and geologists are hunting a new territory; motor vehicle manufacturers promise to establish a new high record in output this year.

California production has fallen off; Powell field production has fallen off. Is there money in petroleum? Yes.

SIMS ON THE ROAD AGAIN

Admiral William Sims of the American Navy says that every man who takes a drink is in effect a bootlegger; men who traffic in alcohol are dangerous criminals and those who buy it are accessories in the crime. Then why not make it a penal offense for men or women to buy from bootleggers? If it is a crime to make it, and it is, why isn't it a crime to buy it? It takes two parties to carry out the transaction—a buyer and a seller. Really the age-old law of supply and demand holds good and those who create the demand are just as guilty as those who create the supply.

TIP O' THE TONGUE

BEWARE of the letter "C." Most of all the bills that flesh is heir to owe their origin to three things, all of which begin with "C." They are: coin, currency and credit. These three furnish the means for most of the luxuries and extravagances.

—WALTER J. BRENNAN, former Federal Tax Commissioner, Baltimore.

THERE are three reasons for the mother-in-law complex, according to our statistics, which showed that mothers-in-law were responsible for most of the difficulties of the 300 couples who came to us for aid. First, no mother thinks any other woman's child is good enough for her own secondly, a mother frequently sees in the marriage of her child the thwarting of her own plans and ambitions; and third, when the boy or girl has been a wage earner the mother dislikes sharing her accustomed income with another. Fathers-in-law are usually not vindictive, and more often than not sympathize with the young people and take the attitude of "let 'em alone and it will come out all right."

—LEONARD M'GEE, attorney for the Legal Aid Society of New York.

ALL thoroughbreds have a lot of sense and personality. Some men are as silly as a pea, but I never knew two well bred horses to be alike. They are individual, strong and courageous. A horse never lies to you.

—JESS-ELIZABETH DAINFIELD, famous breeder of race horses.

SPEAKING OF MEXICANS AND A MENTAL TEST

Labor Commissioner James B. Davis demands that the same restrictive law shall apply to Canadians and Mexicans as to European or Asiatic aliens. He would apply the mental test to the Mexican as well as to the European or Asiatic and reduce the immigration from Mexico to the lowest level.

This will be most interesting legislation for the farmers and ranchmen of Texas and for the railways and other corporations which employ large numbers of laborers to do the rough work. Thousands of Mexicans have been doing the rough work on the ranches and farms of Texas; they have been the pick and the shovel handlers for the railway and building corporations of Texas. They have been clearing the forests and breaking the cut-over lands for the land owners.

It is said that 68,000 Mexicans found homes in Texas last year. They are docile, they attend to their own business, they keep their contracts, they work from dawn until dark and those who have employed them say they are easily handled. Now if the Mexicans are to be barred in Texas, Colorado, Arizona and California where are the rough workers to be found?

A million negroes deserted the old states east of the river since 1920. If prosperity continues in the manufacturing mill centers of the north another million negroes will desert these states in the near future. Pick and shovel workers from Europe are to be barred.

Canada is said to be a glorious country. More than a million young Americans are tilling Canadian soil. They began the invasion of Canada before the coming of the world war. More than 180,000 Canadians found homes in the United States last year. Less than fifty thousand Europeans found work and homes in Canada.

Your young American does not love to perform rough work. He dearly loves a white collar job. Thousands of boys and girls desert the country for the city every year. Tell us Mr. Davis, where do we go from here?

Quillen's Paragraphs

A genuine feminist is one who thinks woman's sphere this one on which we live.

You will notice, however, that these self-made men have wives who were also present.

If Uncle Sam had waited until now, he could recognize Mexico with less difficulty.

The soft drink may be an abomination, but fortunately you can drink or let it alone.

The "nurses" that trouble Europe is just lack of patience to wait until the blisters heal.

If he has something to wet his whistle, he doesn't need to whistle to keep up his courage.

Many a man thinks he is overworked just because he takes all day to handle a three-hour job.

The world is getting some better. Thirty years ago any man with a new idea was called a crank.

Times change, but even yet there are a few old-fashioned parents who think children should obey.

As we understand Henry, he won't interfere so long as the boys make a good job of running the country.

It is easier now to pick out the hen-pecked husbands. They are wearing the ties they got for Christmas.

YOUR HEALTH By Dr. C. C. Robinson

NURSING THE INFANT Article I

The important rules and regulations concerning the baby upkeep are, for some unaccountable reason, usually given great prominence in the warmer months. Many infants arrive during cold weather and the problem of proper nursing is just as difficult at this season as in any other.

In most cases the mother has a proper amount of milk. If the mother is somewhat nervous, the supply may vary from time to time. In many cases such a condition of supply depends on irregular nursing periods, amount of food intake, and a cup of sleep and rest. Again, the amount of milk supply may be reduced or influenced through fear, worry, fright distress or sorrow. Painful breasts are usually the result of a break in the regular nursing routine.

The mother must carefully avoid all these unnecessary conditions, if proper, nutritious nursing is to be carried out successfully. Too much importance is frequently given to diet, clothes and nostrums as aids in nursing and milk supply. Young mothers are prone to adopt many unwise habits and theories from those who are entirely ignorant in such matters. Look out for advice. If you really need advice, get it from your physician.

Sometimes, if the mother is inclined to weakness or is anemic, any effort to stimulate milk supply is helpful. Warm milk, water at the right temperature (about 60 degrees F.) or weak tea, will greatly aid in such cases. On the other hand, if the breasts produce more than the child should have, the milk should be expressed at least once daily, and discarded, as failure to empty an overfilled breast often endangers the supply.

The frequency of nursing must not be determined by the individual as no two are the same. Longer periods give the little digestive system a rest, while shorter periods seem to give a regular, constant weight increase. Periods and weights will be given in article to follow.

THIS LITTLE OLD WORLD

LOS ANGELES BY DON RYAN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—San Francisco, beloved, dancing—hated rival of Los Angeles—has been fooled in an effort to kidnap this city's angel child, the movie industry. Directors and actors here have been angered by the police order against dancing after midnight. As many persons in the movie industry do not use habitually until about 10 p. m., this restriction works a great hardship.

The Wampas, last, annual folk of the movie press agents, will be moved to San Francisco, where the revels will occur Jan. 19. The northern city took occasion to make a strong bid for the entire movie business, but the producers had to admit reluctantly that the climate of Los Angeles made a stay here imperative in spite of blue laws.

During the nation's over-stomping midnight dancing, some ambitious person dug up the records at Los Angeles city ordinances and found the following acts unlawful:

To play a tambourine on the streets without a permit. To make pickles downtown. To give snuff to a child. To keep a hippopotamus west of the river street, between Wilshire boulevard and Jefferson street. To sell snakes on the public highways.

Al Lippe, prize-fight promoter, impetuous to two world champions, is the center of interest with the sporting fraternity. Al had come west to the Cancer was cutting away at his mouth and doctors in America, France and Germany had told him it was only a question of time. A Los Angeles woman removed the cancer with a preparation the group for which has been in her family 200 years.

"And she wouldn't take a cent for doing it," he told visitors. "Ain't that the limit, when I'd spent $10,000 on doctors?"

With careful, thumb, William Crawford Anderson, retired paint manufacturer of New York, lavishly adorns the cracked and arched surface of his Titian, "The Raising of Lazarus." It is one of the five paintings by the Venetian master that are now in the United States. Stolen from the altar of the Vatican by Napoleon's soldiers, brought to Baltimore by Jerome Napoleon, brother of the conqueror, when he came to the United States to live, Anderson bought it for $10,000. It would be appraised today at $200,000.

Your Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

IT IS NO COMPLIMENT TO BE ON A—

Are you who is continually offered questionable securities by unknown brokers, need not feel complimented, because such persons are probably on a "suckers list."

"Suckers lists" are acquired by long experience in the fake stock promotion game. Every "sucker" who is quick to discover some one who is easily persuaded to buy stocks through rosy promises of enormous profits, the promoter adds this name to his list.

Although "one is born every minute" it takes years to acquire a good "suckers list." Such lists have been known to sell for as much as $100,000. If one crooked broker is out of business he usually sells his list to another.

Consequently, although it may appear to stock promoters, it ought to be considered as a result.

The Referee

GUN-MEN

Each San put an embargo on the sale of firearms by American private citizens to Mexican rebels. Common sense certainly will induce Uncle Sam to stop the sale of revolvers in his own country, except to police and military forces. Most communities attempt to curb the sale of pistols by registration or sale only by police permit. This doesn't keep pistols from potential murderers and other criminals. They can buy by mail. The only way to disarm crooks is by a national law.

HUNTERS

Many hunters and sporting magazines are against stopping the sale of revolvers except to owners of the law. The man who needs more than a rifle and gun must be a business hunter.

As for housewives, they could protect themselves with rifles and sawed-off shotguns—which a crook cannot carry through the streets without attracting notice.

PENALTY

A notorious bank robber in Toronto, Canada, is convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment and 20 lashes. Humanitarians disagree with the whipping post system, though it unquestionably strikes terror to the sub-normal criminal mind. As for the life sentence, Toronto has put at least one safe-blower away for good. When they are put in jail in Canada, they stay put. A would-be crook, contemplating a job, thinks twice up there.

"Is he still in love with her? Are you sure he didn't come here to ask her to marry him?"

"If he did he had his journey for his pains—although I can see that it would be a highly desirable combination from his point of view. But he's not in love with her. I'll stake all I know of men on that."

"You are sure?"

"As sure as that I'm alive."

"Well, I'll take the morning train for New York."

"Lee," said Mr. Digwiddle impressively, "take the advice of an old man, who has seen a good deal of men and women in his day, and stay where you are until you hear from Mary. Some sort of crisis has been, but it's burst in on her now, while she is Madame Zatlany, encased in a new set of triple-plated armor, you may ruin all your chances of happiness. Whatever it is let her work it out—and off—by herself. I made her promise she would not leave the country without seeing you again—for I didn't know what might be in the wind—and when she had given her word she added that she had not the least intention of not seeing you again, and that it was quite possible she would return to the camp. If you go down you'll spoil everything."

"I suppose I can trust you, Din. But I've seen plainly that you don't want me to marry her."

"That is true enough. I want nothing less—for your sake; and Hohenhauer would be a far more suitable match for her. But I don't believe you even question my faith."

"No, I don't. You're a brick, Din. But I'm unspeakably worried—almost terrified. I have never—almost really never. She may have had a change of mind, and she's got to God's arms and I sit around here for three days and twiddle my thumbs."

"Don't. Take one of the men and go off on a three days' tramp. Climb Mount Moose. That will give you no chance to think. All your thinking will be in your muscles."

"And suppose she should return—or telephone me to go to her?"

"If she returns it finds you none it'll serve her right. And she won't telegraph a before-Thursday—she's got to be in the city. Now take my advice. I don't be a fool."

Clavering shrugged his shoulders, but he set his lips. "Very well. I won't follow her. Nor will I follow her in a hurry, either."

"That's healthy. Give her a place of your mind, have a good row, and then make it up. But let me tell you, my dear boy, that she was horrified at the thought of that man coming up here and she only refrained from telling you of the unknown, so to speak, because she wanted to spare you any anxiety. There's no doubt in my mind that she's as much in love with you as you are with her."

You have none, I suppose?"

"None. Particularly lately. I hadn't told you, but I had intended, in a day or two, to ask you if you would let me have the camp for a few weeks. We intended to marry in Hohenhauer the day the rest of you went out."

Mr. Digwiddle whistled. "No wonder she was furious at having her preliminary honeymoon disturbed. But if that is the case of course she'll return. You're more than welcome to the camp, and I'll send you whatever you need from time to time. You've only to command me."

It makes it all the more compossible. What ever it was that man said to her, she wanted to know it by her self, before coming back to the place where she had forgotten that Hohenhauer and politics existed. I could see how it was with her. She looked exactly as she used to in the old days, and I don't doubt she felt like it, too. No wonder she resented being forced back into the role of Madame Zatlany, or Gracie—countess—as he calls her. You must let her thresh it out by herself."

"You believe she will come back?"

"If that was your plan, I assuredly do. There isn't a spark of human affection between those two, and Mary never placed herself in any man's power. I am more and more inclined to believe that he appealed to her for help in his mission here, whatever it is—and it's not so difficult to guess—and that against her inclination and out of her love for Austria, she consented."

"Well, it's no use to speculate. There's the supper bell. I'll be off in the morning, whether I go off for a tramp or not."

LVII

Clavering awoke when he first went to bed, for he was healthy and tired, but he awoke suddenly at midnight with body refreshed and mind abnormally clear. He knew that he would sleep no more that night, and he put on his trousers and coat over his pyjamas, thrust his feet into bedroom slippers and went out into the living room. There he put a log on the fire and paced up and down, not unlike a tiger round its cage.

He felt as if black bats were flying about his brain, each charged with a different portent of disaster. Once more the unreality of the whole affair overwhelmed him. How could he have been so fatuous as to believe that he had really won such a woman? He remembered his first impression; that she was on a plane above, apart. They hadn't an interest in common, not even a memory that antedated their meeting a few short weeks ago. She had lived a life of which he knew nothing outside of European novels and memoirs. She had known nothing of any other world until he had introduced her to his friends, and he made no doubt that her interest in them was about as permanent as a highly original comedy on the stage would inspire. There was nothing, literally between them, but a mutual irresistible attraction, and that bond recognized so unerringly by both.

That bond.

Would it hold?

Had this man offered her something that would make love seem insignificant and trivial? She, who had had a surfeit of love long since? Whose eyes had looked a thousand years old until he had given her mind back its youth as the great Vienna biologist had rejuvenated her body.

He was entirely indifferent to her old love affair with Hohenhauer. It was those years of political association and mutual interdependence in Vienna that he feared. He had, when he first met her, approved her as a woman to whom power was the breath of life. Am- lition—in the grand manner—in- carnate. She had all the appear- ance and the air of a woman to whom the wielding of power, how- ever subtly, was an old story. He recalled that that terrifying as- pect of concealed ruthless forces behind those charming man- ners, those feminine wiles, had almost made him resolve to "avoid her like the plague." And then he had fallen madly in love with her and forgotten everything but the woman.

He had divined even before these last miraculous days that she had looked upon love with abhorrence for almost half as many years as he had lived, an abhorrence rooted in a profound revulsion of body and mind and spirit. For nearly twenty years that revulsion had endured and eaten into the very depths of her being.

He had a sudden blaze of enlighten- ment. She had frequently alluded to that, Lodge of hers in the Dolomites, and their sojourn there to- gether, but always in the terms of romance. She had never, how- ever, given him a glance of understand- ing. . . . And she had put off the wedding until the last possible moment. . . . If she had really been as eager as himself she would have left her power of attorney with Trent and started for Austria six weeks ago. Or the papers could have been sent to her to sign, if her signature was impera- tive. . . . And in spite of the fact that everybody had taken the engagement for granted, she had, with wholly insufficient reasons—as he saw, now that he was re- moved from the influence of re- plausible and dominating self—re- fused to announce it. Could it be that in the depths of her mind—un- admitted by her consciousness—she had never intended to marry him? Was that old revulsion para- mount?

A long time, and no doubt a life time, more corroding than habit. Perhaps as long as they were down there in New York. But not up here. That he would be willing to swear. There had been another revolution, involuntary perhaps, but the stronger for that; and every shackle that memory and habit can force had dropped from her. She had been youth incarna- tion. The proof was in her joyful consent to marry him immediately and remain in the mountains, and then her complete surrender of the future into his hands.

She had during those three brief days loved him wholly, and with- out a shadow in her soul.

But now? Whatever had hap- pened, she was not Mary Ordan tonight, hastening to New York, nor would she be when in her own home on the morrow. She might hate Hohenhauer, but his mere presence would have made the past live again. She must have known when she went down that mountain that even with her strong will and powers of self-delusion, things could not be quite the same again. Not even if she had re- turned with Diawidic. Why in heaven's name had she been so mad as to go? She could have sent Hohenhauer a peremptory refusal to see him and then gone off on a camping trip that could have last- ed until he gave up the game. She must have been mad—mad.

Jacket Without Sleeves Fights for Popularity

KEY-LEAD—JACKET WITHOUT SLEEVES
 Fashion designers have been playing with the idea of the sleeveless jacket for several years, and often they seem to bring at the same game without much of an audience. For especially American women, however, the idea has not been so successful.

Apparently, the idea is that if it is cold enough to wear a jacket at all it is cold enough to wear a jacket with sleeves, and if it is warm enough to wear a jacket without sleeves, then why in the name of fashion, old or new, should one wear a jacket?

The idea is not a new one. It has been around since the days of Henry VIII and even earlier. In fact, in the 16th century, men wore jackets without sleeves, and women wore jackets with sleeves. The idea of a sleeveless jacket was revived in the 19th century, and it has been around ever since.

LETTER FROM PAULA PERIER TO JOHN ALDEN PRESS COTT

CHER AMI:
 Our good friend, Sydney Carton, has told me about my baby, and my heart was so lumpy to hear of him. He has also said some very disquieting things. John, you are not going to keep my baby from me forever. Now I can be his mother. Now I can take care of him. Now I want him. Oh, I can never tell you how much I want him.

When I looked him to you I had heard that your wife was very ill and that only a baby to cuddle in her arms would save her life or at least restore her reason. Now she is well and some day soon perhaps she may have a baby of her own, while my arms are empty for mine.

But it is that changes many things. John, once I thought you should have part of the care of my baby, especially as it was impossible for me to even feed him. Now I know I was wrong. He was my baby. Mine alone and I should have cared for him even at the cost of my own life.

I was not quite sane, John, when I told him outside your door that night. I want him, he is mine. Give him back to me. He is all I have. Even though the world says I am rich, I am the poorest mother this earth holds, for I have given my child for the money and care of a cold world. Sydney has probably told you of my great success in moving pictures. There are compensations, John. I would not have been able to have pictured one had I not loved. I never would have been able to have pictured suffering had I not suffered. Everything that comes to us, John, comes to us for a purpose. I will confess that when I helped to write my first picture I was still hurt and unhappy and I wanted to make you suffer. If you have seen it you will understand. No one else would do so, for no one else in all the world, except Syd, knew my story. I love my work and I am determined that it shall now be the love of my life, for I have resolved that no one shall ever be able to make me again as unhappy as you have made me.

Don't worry, John. I will not make you any trouble unless I find that I cannot live without my baby. Syd tells me he looks like you. That is not strange, for at that time you were more than God to me. I love you, John. I love you more than I love myself.

SOUTH GAINS IN CONSTRUCTION

Principal Cities Show Loss in December, However

South's building and construction year was brought to a triumphant close on December 31, with practically every important center in the section showing gratifying gains over the record breaking year of 1922. Building permits of the principal cities for the month of December, however, showed a 20 per cent slump over similar figures for the previous year.

December Loss Explained
The December loss can be entirely accounted for by unusual conditions obtaining in two cities. Memphis, Tenn., although leading the cities of the further south for the past month, nevertheless showed a loss over December, 1922, of nearly two millions; while Fort Worth, Texas, recorded a substantial blanket permit of five millions in December, 1922, to cover construction in territory recently taken into the incorporated limits, and lost this amount in the 1922 comparison.

With these two cities omitted, the territory as a whole would have shown a slight gain. St. Louis, Atlanta and Birmingham each gained approximately a million dollars, while Miami, St. Petersburg, Huntington, Bluefield, W. Va., and the majority of North Carolina cities showed healthy increases.

20 Ranking Cities
The 20 ranking cities of the South for the last month are as follows: St. Louis, $3,464,770; Memphis, $2,531,220; Atlanta, $2,340,656; Kansas City, $1,486,200; Birmingham, $1,431,500; Houston, $1,325,517; Richmond, $1,137,879; Dallas, $1,128,062; Miami, $923,582; Sedalia, Mo., $832,152; Shreveport, $773,977; Louisville, $710,367; New Orleans, $696,650; Fort Worth, $671,029; Greensboro, $612,121; St. Petersburg, $515,200; Tulsa, $419,934; Jacksonville, $370,163; Wilmington, $355,000; Huntington, W. Va., $294,750.

The inclusion of Sedalia, Mo., among the first 10 was occasioned by three large municipal buildings which were begun, including a new high school of large proportions. All other cities made their showing by a very heavy schedule of general building, a continuation of a building program that has been in effect for the past year and which gives promise of being continued into 1924 in the same degree.

Records for the entire year, 1923, have not yet been completed, but indications point to a general gain for the year of over 20 per cent.

Three Factions Work For Texas' 40 Votes

BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Port Arthur News Staff.

Mid-January finds the preliminaries for the presidential campaign well advanced and the national machinery of the two great parties in smooth running order. Chairman John Adams of the national republican committee starts off with money in the campaign chest and no deficit in sight. Chairman Cordell Hull of the national democratic committee finds his campaign chest empty with a deficit of $180,000 staring him in the face.

Coolidge Has Walkover
Calvin Coolidge at this hour appears to have a walkover for the republican nomination. There is no politician unwise enough to bet his money on the outcome of the democratic convention. Convention cities have named headquarters, have been established and now the battle may be said to be on for the control of the conventions to be held in June and July.

Under the new apportionment recently made by the republican committee there will be a total of 1,100 delegates in the convention to be held at Cleveland, Ohio, on June 10. Republican delegates from the preferred primary states number 532 or just three short of the required majority to nominate. It takes two-thirds of the 1,094 delegates to nominate in the democratic convention and only 310 of the necessary 729 1-3 may be obtained in the preferential primary states.

Love Wants Change
Texas has no preferential primary law. Here, as in many other states the old caucus convention system is in vogue. National Committeeman Thomas B. Love is an advocate of the majority rule. He would abrogate the two-thirds rule which has prevailed in democratic national conventions since 1852 and is said to be as sacred as the beard of the prophet.

There is no reason why a convention rule made in 1852 should be held sacred in the year 1924. Men made the rule almost a century ago and men can unmake it in 1924—that is if they control a majority of the delegates elected to the national convention. William Gibbs McAdoo is said to be opposed to any change in this democratic custom which is most revered and almost as ancient as the dollar. It is morally certain that the big leaders of the big states of the Union in the middle west and the east will lend violent opposition to the Love proposal.

Women Has the Ballot
Women has played havoc in recent years in upsetting the status quo by the mere presence of their votes. There are 1,250,000 qualified voters in Texas. There are 650,000 qualified women voters in Texas. In by-gone years the maximum vote at a presidential election rarely has ever gone beyond the hundred thousand mark. It did not go beyond it in the hotly contested campaign for control of the precinct conventions in 1920.

All Factions Working Hard
McAdoo men are building up a statewide precinct organization. Undeveloped men are building up a statewide precinct organization. Now men are building a statewide organization including precinct organizations. Ferguson had his organization a going concern when Henry Ford mounted the elephant and declared his intentions for 1924. Ferguson is resting on his oars. He knows where he is going and promises to tell the people later along.

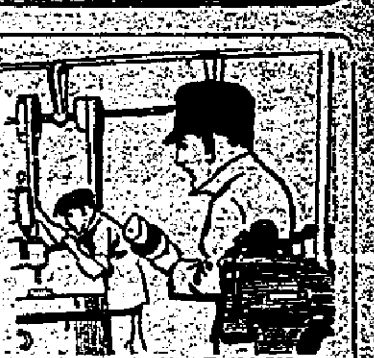

The precinct or primary convention in each precinct of Texas for naming delegates to county conventions will be held the first Saturday in May, or May 4, to be explicit. Really the battle for control of delegates to the national convention is on in many of the states where they hold preferential primaries. Both North and South Texas hold their preferential primaries on March 18. April will furnish even preferential primaries in states of vast importance to all avowed candidates for the presidential nomination.

Wisconsin, the home of La Follette, will lead off on April 1; Michigan, the home of Henry Ford on April 7; Illinois the home of George S. Bryan, one of the big bosses of the "democratic party" on April 8; Nevada, the former home of William Jennings Bryan and the home state of his brother, Governor Charles W. Bryan on April 15; New Jersey, the former home of Woodrow Wilson and the home of Senator E. I. Tamm on April 22. Both Massachusetts and Ohio will hold preferential primaries on April 29. Ohio is the home of the Hon. James M. Cox who is ready to take up the standard where he laid it down in 1920 and make the League of Nations the paramount issue.

Walsh and Smith Leaders
Massachusetts is the home of the Massachusetts Democrats' followers wherever Walsh leads. New York, the home of Governor Al Smith and Senator Terrell S. Cochran elect district delegates on April 1, but the New York law does not permit the expression by voters of a presidential preference. Additional states will hold preferential primaries in May. Maryland, the home of Governor Alfred Ritchie will elect delegates on May 5; California and Indiana on May 6; Oregon on May 16; Pennsylvania and Vermont on May 20 and Montana and West Virginia on May 27.

California is the home state of William Gibbs McAdoo. Indiana is the home of Senator Samuel Ralston and one of the biggest and most successful of the democratic bosses, the Hon. Thomas Taggart, the close friend of George S. Bryan of Illinois and Charles F. Murphy. William Jennings Bryan is a citizen of Florida and he is going to do his best to break into the national convention as a delegate from Florida. It is interesting to note that the last of the preferential primaries will be held in Florida on June 3 and in North Carolina on June 7.

Fair Weather Gives Local Golfers Chance to Strut Their Wares at Country Club for Coming Events

Actors Last Battle For Port City Fans During This Season

Husky Grapplers Settle Ancient Grudge Here in Finish; No-Time-Limit Scrap at Elks Theatre Next Week

COMING—Another light-heavyweight champion. The title-holder of Europe, not his first appearance here, true, but the first time he has ever appeared in this city with George Vassel Actor, local prodigy, as his adversary.

And George says it is positively his last match in Port Arthur this season.

After next Thursday evening, the Grecian wrestling artist who for several months has been setting local grappling realms on fire with his unquenchable nerve and speed, to say nothing of the super-human strength he has displayed, nor of his science and knowledge of the game, will pack his duds together, and bid adieu to local friends and pals, George is so away.

But before he takes his departure, he is to get the wallop at Elks Theatre, of Little Rock, Ark. for three long, weary years, he has sought to get in the ring for a Turkish scrap.

To Meet at 8:30

The husky light-heavyweights will wrestle at the popular weight of 185 pounds. That is George's favorite size, he claims; and it ought to be a close one.

Rentrop has appeared here before, and claims almost as many admirers among the Port City wrestling fans as does Actor—perhaps more. He is a sensational sort of scrapper, with an almost indomitable will and strength of his own to pit against that of the local ace.

Smear of Bad Blood

Since there is undoubtedly a smear of bad blood existing between himself and Rentrop, George Actor will go to the ring here next week with determination written all over his countenance. A determination to whip Rentrop for the sake of all past differences, and to whip him well.

But since George has had so much to say about the matter himself, he will no doubt find an opponent just as eager to crush and maul him about the squared canvas, and one who will undoubtedly keep Actor busy from the opening bell.

Has Other Good Bills

This isn't the last of Promoter Will Fort's athletic bills. There will be others—sensational bouts on which Pinks Gardner, the popular S. H. Smith, N. Y. artist, Stranger J. Lewis and as speedy grapplers, and Rentrop, George Actor will go to the ring here next week with determination written all over his countenance. A determination to whip Rentrop for the sake of all past differences, and to whip him well.

But since George has had so much to say about the matter himself, he will no doubt find an opponent just as eager to crush and maul him about the squared canvas, and one who will undoubtedly keep Actor busy from the opening bell.

At Any Rate, Bill has a real stock of sporting blood coursing through his veins.

Ticket Sales Early

Tickets for the scrap will go on sale probably tomorrow at Elks Theatre and the Bryan Tailoring shops, where they are usually to be found. Only 200 ringside seats will be dispensed and no general admissions will be sold until the evening of the bill at Elks Theatre. The popular prices of $1.50 and $1 plus the tax will obtain.

Box seats will also be placed on early sale and can be secured this trip without the prospect of a small bit at the theatre.

LONGHORN BAND MAY PLAY IN P. A.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 16.—Beginning on its annual all state tour, the sixty piece Longhorn band and Variety Premier Entertainers will make an extensive tour of the state this spring according to Manager Edwin E. Smith of Austin.

The tour this year has many possibilities that the manager who says that many Texas cities have requested that they be included in the itinerary. Last spring the band made an all state southern tour which included Brenham, Galveston, Port Arthur, Orange, Beaumont, Houston, Victoria, Bay City, San Antonio, Taylor and Austin. Letters received from these cities and from Dallas, Fort Worth, Denton, and other Texas cities have asked that they be included in the tour.

COLLEGE PREXY SAYS STUDENTS DRINK MUCH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Drink among college and university students has greatly increased since constitutional prohibition, Dr. Samuel Plantz, president of Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., told the anti-alcohol league today at its annual convention here.

He said a large percentage of American college students favor "some modification in the prohibition law."

FOR WORKING PEOPLE

The best of workers get out of sorts when the liver fails to act. They feel languid, half-awake, "blue" and discouraged and think they are getting "liver" trouble. Of these symptoms which result in a sick spell, there is a sure cure. It is to take a dose of E. M. Grove's BROMO QUININE. It is just the medicine needed to purify the system, restore the run and ambition of health. Price 50c. Sold by Corner Drug Co.

Ready For Mill

CHARLIE RENTROP

Sensational light-heavyweight champion of Europe, who appears here Thursday, January 24th, at 8 o'clock in Elks Theatre with George Vassel Actor as his opponent in a finish, no-time-limit match. George has chosen a real opponent for his final bill this season in Port Arthur.

THE NUT CRACKER

Considering his remarkable thirst, it is indeed strange that Battling Sild does not specialize in the cork-screw punch.

Amateur athletes are to be heard from newspaper writing, but it grieves us to know that Mexican athletes will continue to fill the columns with bank of purest my screen.

A race horse dropped dead in New Mexico the other day and the astonishing thing about it is that we didn't have a bet on him.

We suppose it's perfectly proper to refer to bathing girls in the films as comic strip artists.

They're going to let Harry Tarr out again and then maybe the scenery of good left handers won't be so noticeable.

It happens to be the painful truth that some of these tramp athletes can make him out of many collegiate players.

There is some consolation in the knowledge that when the box finally do get to King Tut he may not be in a mood to discuss the spiny controversy.

Despite the fact that Tilden has led the tennis players for four straight years, his friends insist he has a very bright future.

McGraw bought a minor league team from the other day and paid only $20,000 for him. The champion should be named in apology.

These amateur athletes would probably get along a whole lot better if they joined the American Federation of Labor.

Among those who think Charlie Rentrop should be barred are the many who'll have to see him in the 1924 and dash.

The crude Mr. Benny Leonard writes that the viciousness of stage life is grossly exaggerated. Oh well, we all have our little disappointments.

So far as most of the westerners who are interested that country are concerned, the Turkish bath is only an American invention.

It appears that Tex Rickard instead of sagging the New York politicians simply told them to jump it.

Intra-Mural Sports Go Over With Bang Here

This was the asserting assertion of officials in charge of the sporting events which have been outlined for the students during the coming days and weeks, in which time practically every class in the institution will be given an opportunity to pit its wares against fellow students in the intra-mural.

Friday of this week the first event on the schedule occurs in the swimming tank of the school, when four grades enter the tank in a boys swimming contest. There will be diving dashes, races and novelty water contests of every description, and the program promises to be spicy.

Fathers of the boys are especially urged to attend the meet. Women and girls will be excluded.

MUSICAL PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Goss Expects Big Crowd for 'Sally, Irene, and Mary'

Belief that he may have to hang out the "S. H. O." sign tonight when "Sally, Irene and Mary" will arrive in Port Arthur, was expressed this morning by Milt Goss, Elks Theatre manager.

The play, which will be presented here by the original New York company producing it, will consist of two acts in which there are nine scenes. Two carloads of scenery used especially in the play and a cast of 70 characters will appear, accompanied by their own orchestra.

Rehearsals Held For Senior Play

Rehearsals for the high school senior class play, "Come Out of the Kitchen," are being held each night at the Franklin auditorium. Miss Ivy Stegwart, publicity agent, said this morning that all members of the cast were getting along splendidly with their parts.

The play is to be given on the evenings of January 22 and 23 at Franklin auditorium. Enos Folger has been appointed chairman of the ticket committee and Tucker Barnes, his assistant. Tickets have also been given to each class president for distribution to high school students. The proceeds of the play will be used to purchase a motion picture machine for use at the high school.

REFUSES TO HOLD UP HANDS, SHOT DEAD

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 16.—Thomas McGurdy, 27 years old, an orderly at the Middlesex hospital here, shot and killed John Latole, 55 years old, an orderly at St. Peter's hospital, during a hold-up in Antonio Ketter's fruit store, according to the police.

McGurdy is alleged to have placed a revolver at the back of Latole's neck and when the latter twice refused a curri command to "stick 'em up," fired one shot. Latole crumpled in his chair, dying instantly.

Latole, James Kolmar and Kolves were sitting at a table in the store waiting when McGurdy entered and took a position behind Latole's chair, according to the police. The command from McGurdy and the shooting came as a complete surprise to all the men, who knew McGurdy well.

RAILROAD MUST SPEND MILLIONS

Growth of Traffic Makes Improvements Necessary

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Within the next ten years the railroads of the country must spend $7,875,000 for betterments and better equipment to keep up with the constant transportation demands, President Markham of the Illinois Central told the Farmer-Manufacturer convention here today.

Freight traffic during the next decade will increase 22 1/3 per cent, and passenger traffic 25 per cent, according to these estimates, he said. To meet the demand, the roads must purchase 12,200 locomotives, 125,000 freight cars, 12,300 passenger cars, build 38,250 miles of track and make corresponding increases in other facilities, Markham stated.

This program will call for an average annual expenditure of $787,500, 600 compared with an average of $230,000,000 per year for many years prior to 1923, he said.

Reduction of freight rates would mean little to the farmers, he said. The crying need is for reduction in taxation, particularly the liquor tax, he declared.

LIQUOR CACHE BARED BY RESTLESS HEN

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 16.—A restless hen landed John A. Smiley, local resident, in jail.

Visiting Smiley's postoffice, members of the police vice squad spied a hen sitting, apparently because of discomfort, on a nest in the rear room. Corporal O'Loughlin thought, between shots, that he saw the neck of a bottle. Investigating, he found a half-pint bottle of booze in the nest. Four more half-pints were found in feather dusters and behind trash barrels.

OPTOMETRISTS TELL ABOUT SPECS STYLES

HOUSTON, Jan. 16.—Among the line with almost everything else, style things are at last reaching such prosaic things as your "specs." You're not quite up-to-date unless you have three pairs of them.

That's the word from 200 delegates to the southwest district convention of the American Optometrists Association in session here today.

You should have specs to:

1. Training wear—Nothing stickily on except unless these glasses, 2. Door use and sports—Heavy weight frames, usually shell or celluloid.

3. Office or business—More conservative in color and usually held on with hooks around corners.

BURNS KILL MOTHER. FIRE RAZES HOME

MAISON, Jan. 16.—Mrs. James Vardell died here from burns suffered when she tried to remove a sweater from her clothing and set fire to herself. She was saved from immediate death by her 15-year-old son, the oldest of four children. Sunday, while she was still in the hospital, the children themselves narrowly escaped suffocation when her home was destroyed by fire. They were rescued by neighbors. The cause of the fire in the home is unknown.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuritis, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, swollen, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

St. Joe Coming Here for Spring Training in Month of March

Western Leaguers To Play Series of Exhibitions in City

George Weddell, Bert Hughes, Charlie Dismukes Clinch Deal for YMBL With Signing of Contract for Cosmopolitan Park

BY BILL ARCHER

WITH the signing of a contract this morning at 10 o'clock, the Y. M. B. L. of Port Arthur clinched for the first time in the city's history a big league ball nine to undergo training in the Port City.

This was the announcement given out today by George Weddell, chairman of a committee representing the Y. M. B. L., who since yesterday morning have been in conference with Joe Mathes, manager, and Secretary Giles of the St. Joseph (Western League) club.

The team will arrive here March 5, take up headquarters at Central hotel, and remain in Port Arthur the entire period of 30 days during which the 25 ball players they will bring along will be whipped into A-1 condition for another bitter race in the Western League loop.

TRAIN AT COSMOPOLITAN PARK

Training will be conducted at Cosmopolitan park, located southeast of the Kansas City Southern railway tracks, and the grounds, under the control of Mendel Word, former police chief here, have been rounded into shape for some of the fastest games of baseball local fans have ever been treated to.

A stipulated sum of $2,500 has been guaranteed the Missouri contingent to bring the Western League runners-up to Port Arthur, and although the facilities here are not in a class with those of Gotham, the climate and general conditions of the city appealed to Mathes and Giles that it was understood today they had cancelled plans of visiting Orange and Lake Charles.

Those grounds were tentatively on their list with Port Arthur's. COMMITTEE INSPECTS GROUNDS

A committee headed by Weddell and including Bert Hughes and Charlie Dismukes, representing the Y. M. B. L. in the transactions, accompanied the St. Joseph baseball officials to Cosmopolitan park this morning to give the grounds a final inspection before the contract was signed. Mathes expressed approval of the location, and intimated that the old sand lot will immer during March with some upturn performances of the national pastime.

The 25 members of the squad to be brought here are, for the most part, old members of the club, although a number of rookies will be given workouts during their stay here in the process of developing the 1924 St. Joseph machine for the Western League race.

REAL BASEBALL TREAT

Port Arthur is to be given a real baseball treat—her first in 16 years of spring training undertakings—in the clinching of the St. Joseph nine, and the Y. M. B. L., which organization for over a year has taken the lead in recognizing local sporting movements and efforts, is to be congratulated on securing its first big time club to train here.

Good ball players abounded in the Western League in the 1922 race and the chief contender for the pennant was St. Joseph. Tulsa won out in the end, with a percentage of .517 for the season, but the St. Joseph club was close on her heels, with a finishing touch of .581. Speaking of the St. Joe club, Spalding's Official Baseball Guide for 1922 asserts that "for a time looked as if St. Joe might overhaul the leaders," but in the end, Tulsa won out.

ON 98 GAMES IN 1922

Last season, the St. Joe club won 98 games and lost 79, and they were hitting a bigger stride when the season closed than when it had opened.

With the arrival of the squad in Port Arthur, the sporting season will ring up on a series of fast week day clashes and Sunday events, that will find the clubs training in Beaumont and other neighboring communities visiting the Port City with their mitts ready for action; it will mean a series of professional games, and a chance for the fans to witness some real baseball.

BASE FANS TO BE LOYAL

Although no definite information has been given out concerning all the stipulations agreed upon in the contract by the Y. M. B. L. and the St. Joseph club, Weddell let it be known this morning that loyal baseball fans will be called upon strong help put over the first venture and to make Port Arthur an attractive place for other clubs to want to visit for spring training.

Clinching of the St. Joe squad follows a series of inquiries laid back and forth here between the Chamber of Commerce and various big teams, the first of which was Des Moines' Soxers, who also had a covetous eye cast on Port Arthur.

Master Minds Often Fail in Pinch

When Ira Thomas and Jack Lapp, now dead, were the catchers on Mack's club, the Athletics had a great staff of pitchers, prominent among them being Eddie Plank, Jack Coombs and Chief Bender.

It was the last half of the ninth, with the bases filled, two out, two strikes and three balls on the batter and the Athletics leading by one run. Of course everything hinged on the next ball pitched.

Thomas, crouched, gave a signal to Coombs, only to have the pitcher shake his head. The performance was repeated several times. Finally, disgusted at the delay in the game, Billy Evans stepped to the side and said to Thomas:

"What's the idea? Looks as if you two fellows were trying to make a joke out of the game. Better get together on your signals."

"I have given Coombs every signal, except the one calling for a waste ball, and he has shook his head every time."

"Well, I guess you had better give him that one," Evans answered in quiet jest. Once again Thomas crouched, and gave the signal for the waste ball. Instantly a peculiar look came over Coombs' face. Walking almost up to the plate, he remarked:

"Have you gone crazy? Do you want me to force the tying run over the plate by throwing a waste ball with the count three and two and the bases filled?"

"Well, that's the only signal I had left," answered Thomas. "You shook all the others off."

"That gave Coombs a big laugh. He then conferred with Thomas, decided on the ball to be pitched and proceeded to strike out the batsman, ending the game."

Paddock May Be Put On Roster of A. A. U. Without Humiliation of Apology

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Pressure brought on the A. A. U. to hear "the Paddock case" and settle the question of eligibility of the California sprinter brought word officially today that the case will be put before a special committee just as soon as Paddock applies for reinstatement.

Paddock, according to information received from the west, has prepared his application with great care and is prepared to present it soon to Robert S. Weaver, A. A. U. official, who is getting for the union in California.

Expect Quiet Hearing

Instead of providing a lot of fireworks the hearing of the case may result in a very quiet announcement that Paddock is eligible to compete in the Olympic games providing he can make the team.

It is assumed, of course, that Paddock will have to compete in the trial events and that he will not be appointed to a place on the team because of his past performances.

Withdraw Demands

The demand was made sometime ago by the A. A. U. for an apology by Paddock, but it is understood now that he will not be asked to humiliate himself and that his application for reinstatement will be accepted as an admission that he was in the wrong.

Paddock has been out of competition so long that some very good judges of track athletes feel that he may not have a much in winning a place on the team.

Longhorns, Minus Stellar Goalers, Present Poorest Caging Quintet in Years

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 16.—Due to the poor showing of the Longhorn basketball team in the recent series with the Southwestern Pirates, Coach Doc Stewart has issued a call for new players to strengthen his team. The Longhorns play the Oklahoma Aggies and the Rice Owls this week, and these four conference games are expected to either make or break the University of Texas five.

In response to the summons for help, Bruce Steiner of Houston, Robert Honan of El Paso, and Charlie Bass of Houston reported to the Longhorn squad Monday afternoon.

The Longhorns play Oklahoma A. & M. here Tuesday and Wednesday nights and go to Houston to meet the Rice team Thursday and Friday. Comparative scores indicate that these four games will be among the hardest of the season. The results of the T. C. U. A. & M. and the T. C. U. A. & M. games show that the Owls have a strong team this season. The Oklahoma Aggies defeated St. M. U. with comparative ease and before the season opened, the Mustangs were heralded as probable conference winners. These games proved the ability of Oklahoma.

On the eve of two of the most important series of the year, the Longhorns probably are in poorer condition than they will be at any other time this season. Captain Bobby Robertson, who was out of the first Southwestern game and most of the second contest, has not fully recovered from a sprained ankle. Robertson is the main cog in the Longhorn defense and without him, the team is tactically weakened. Hubert Foster of Waco, a rookie who has been making good, is suffering with an injured foot. Emmanuel Ponsford of El Paso, who did not play basketball last year, has not rounded into his best condition. Lester Settegast, the elongated Longhorn center, has an injured shoulder.

"How do you do?" said a voice.

When the travelers landed in Balloon Land, the balloons floated off right back the way they came. The balloons were growing.

"How do you do?" said a voice, and then stood a large paper elephant balloon that had floated up to Balloon Land on the Fourth of July.

"How do you do?" asked Daddy Gander. "And you see this little fellow come this way, Mister Elephant? Each of them was holding onto a big bunch of circus balloons, and they blew away with them. I mean the balloons blew away with the little boys. The boys didn't blow away with the balloons."

The balloon elephant was just about to answer, when they heard Mother Goose's voice. "Then, Mister Man, I'll take that yellow balloon, and that blue balloon, and the red one with a white cat painted on it, and the green one that looks like a watermelon, and that pretty blue one, and those two white ones. My balloon crop is a fine one this year. I never saw them grow so large before. Cut them all off the tree for me at once as I'm in a hurry. I must go back to Mother Goose Land because it's a new day, I want these extra fine balloons for some of my little friends."

"Dear me! Oh, dear me!" gasped poor Daddy Gander. "It's Mother Goose herself! She mustn't see us for she'll never understand anything."

But no sooner had he spoken than Twiddle Dum and Twiddle Dee appeared, still holding onto their balloons, or rather the balloons still holding onto them, for by this time the strings were so tangled they couldn't have let go if they wanted to.

"How on earth did you two ever get up here?" asked Mother Goose breathlessly.

Then the Twiddles told her the whole story about the balloons, and how they had floated up to Balloon Land, and how a wind had blown them up to Balloon Land, and how they had got them up to Balloon Land, and how they had got them up to Balloon Land.

"Well, I'll take you both home to my broom," said Mother Goose. "I'll suddenly see about it. I'll take you home to my broom at once, and go up to Balloon Land and tell Mister Spunkle how to send me weather for the circus. I don't know how to get you home."

At that Daddy Gander stepped out and so did Nance and Nick and the circus man, who had come along with them. "Hello mother!" said Daddy Gander. "Hello mother!" said Nance. "Hello mother!" said Nick. "Hello mother!" said the circus man. "Hello mother!" said the circus man.

Mother Goose wasn't a bit cross. "All right, Daddy," she said. "And be careful that nobody falls off." So everybody was happy and Mister Twiddle got her boys home safely.

ting "out" in order that the eyes of the runners might be dazzled.

But she did not halt.

"Resume fire."

"Once more that calm, even voice rang out, as inexorable as fate."

"WHAM!"

The 4-inch gun again roared its command to halt.

High over the head of the fleeing boat, a puff of fleecy white appeared where an instant before had been, but blue sky.

To the front of the target spurts of water flew high in the air.

To right—to left—to stern—the same miniature, geyser sprang into being.

"Cease firing!"

Again the fugitives were given a lease of life.

Stoody the motor boat came about. Like some sky thing of the wild she timidly approached the Seneca bobbing up and down on the waters of the Atlantic.

Silently, the only sound the put-put of her motor, she drew abeam.

"Come alongside aft and come aboard."

A brief "Aye, Aye, Sir!" came from one of the bedraggled figures crouched in the cockpit of the motor boat.

Blue-clad sailors lined the rail of the Seneca. The sun glinted on the rifles in their hands. Around their waists, khaki ammunition belts contrasted strangely with the unfamiliar blue. Sly grins creased their lips.

Two dirty, unshaven, unkempt figures climbed over the stern of the Seneca. One of them had to be helped. His knees would hardly support his weight.

The other, still defiant, and grinning, remarked:

"Rotten shootin'. Youse guys couldn't hit the side of a barn. Say, whose got a pill?"

Uncle Sam had collared two more "lickt visitors" to the rum-fleet.

"I had been fortunate enough to witness at first hand the work of these guardians of sea coast adjacent to New York."

Drab, official reports convey little of the inside of rum chasing.

The Seneca had been patrolling the waters just inside the 12-mile limit. She had encountered 10 members of the rum fleet.

But in the absence of any official sanction of the new 12-mile treaty with Great Britain, the Seneca had merely passed by checking up on the position of the various boats.

It was when she came up to the Catherine Mary, a vessel of British registry, that the race of the fleeing suspects began.

The two men were aboard the Catherine Mary. Their boat was moored alongside.

With the arrival of the Seneca, two figures were seen to leap into the small craft.

Like a bullet from a rifle, they shot away, keeping the Catherine Mary between them and the Seneca. Quickly the Seneca started in pursuit.

But her 11 knots an hour made a losing race of it against the motor boat's 20.

That was why the Seneca resorted to her guns.

After the capture and arrest of the motor boat, she and the two prisoners were sent into New York, the men to tell their story to the United States commissioner, and the boat to await the outcome of her owners' troubles.

DUFF HEARING GOES TO AUSTIN

Port Arthur Loses Fight to Bring Officials Here

Port Arthur as the prospective place for the joint Texas rail and Interstate Commerce commission hearings bearing on the application for a certificate of convenience and necessity by Col. R. C. Duff for an extension of the W. B. T. & S. railway from Livingston, Polk county, to Port Arthur, and the protest against such issuance by the Kansas City Southern railway apparently had lost its fight today.

Efforts of the traffic department of the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping and Col. Duff were centered in obtaining the hearing for Port Arthur because of its central location to the issues involved, and the further fact of its greater convenience for the large number of witnesses to testify in the hearing.

In a communication addressed to the Chamber, Commission W. A. Nabors stated that the Texas body had carefully considered the matter and had come to the conclusion that Austin was the logical place for the hearing.

"This," said Nabors, "is owing to the fact that the road extends over to and includes Waco, and that different points along the line would doubtless be interested in the hearing and would have representatives. Further, we have our routine work to consider, necessitating our presence in Austin to avoid delays."

Plans were being laid by the chamber today to accommodate itself to the decision.

"We are greatly disappointed but will have to make the best of it since the decision apparently is final," said Frank Potts, traffic manager.

14 PET DOGS GUARD DEAD WOMAN'S BODY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 16.—Fourteen dogs she had befriended were found "crowded about a bed" containing the body of Mrs. Emily Yochum, aged 80, at 814 South avenue, North Side, when neighbors alarmed when she failed to exercise the dogs as usual, entered the house and found the aged woman dead.

The dogs continued their howling long after the body had been taken to the morgue.

Mrs. Yochum, who died of heart trouble, lived alone.

Police said Mrs. Yochum was the widow of a former hotel proprietor. It is believed relatives live in Chillicothe, Ohio.

She had lived in the North Side for 10 years and was well known from her befriending of stray dogs.

DELAY CHIROPRACTOR TRIAL IN GIRL'S DEATH

FOXD DU LAC, Jan. 16.—The case of W. E. Griggs, chiropractor, charged with second degree murder in connection with the death of Miss Margaret Olmstead, was postponed here Monday morning until Jan. 15. Griggs is at liberty under $5,000 bond.

In a deathbed statement, made to the county attorney, Miss Olmstead, who died as the result of an illegal operation, said she had been told to go to Griggs and he would "help her." Her statement recites that Griggs agreed to help her if "she would not give him away."

When arrested, Griggs said that the case is one of mistaken identity, and that he believes the girl was delirious when she made the statement. Miss Olmstead, whose home is at Lenoir, died last Thursday.
